

Need a New IT System?

Pass The Problem To Us!

The owners and managers of industrial and commercial companies are expert in their particular fields, but often lack specialist staff or skills in the field of IT systems. The problem becomes more acute as businesses grow and owner / managers realise the need for an accounting or management information system with features specific to their business. Unfortunately specialist IT systems tend to be expensive and selecting the ideal one for your company is time-consuming at best. The impact of a bad choice can be disastrous. Lost orders, lost customers and the loss of huge amounts of time are common.

We can help you avoid these problems by providing expert assistance at all points in the IT systems acquisition process including:

- ◆ specification of the software and hardware
- ◆ selection of the software and hardware
- ◆ negotiation of contracts for purchase & implementation of the systems
- ◆ negotiation of contracts for development & support of the systems
- ◆ implementation of the systems

Poor IT system specification and acquisition can cause huge losses in time and money and even customers. It can also result in immense frustration for key staff.
